Differences Between Coaching and Psychotherapy

Coaching is different from psychotherapy — it neither is, nor purports to be, a substitute for psychotherapy.

In addition to being a coach, I am also a clinical social worker licensed in South Carolina, with training and experience in diagnosing and treating emotional problems. While there are some similarities between coaching and psychotherapy, they are very different endeavors and it is important that you understand the differences between them. Psychotherapy is a healthcare service and is usually reimbursable through health insurance policies. This is not true for coaching. Both coaching and psychotherapy utilize knowledge of human behavior, motivation, behavioral change and interactive counseling techniques. The major differences are in the focus, goals and level of professional responsibility.

Focus & Goals

The focus of coaching is development and implementation of strategies to reach Client-identified goals which will enhance performance and personal satisfaction. Coaching may address specific personal projects, life balance, job performance and satisfaction, or general conditions in the client's life, business, or profession. Coaching utilizes personal strategic planning, values clarification, brainstorming, motivational counseling and other counseling techniques. Deciding how to handle these issues and incorporate coaching into those areas is exclusively your responsibility.

The Coach/Client Relationship

The relationship between the coach and client is specifically designed to avoid the power differentials that occur in the psychotherapy relationship. The client sets the agenda and the success of the enterprise depends on the client's willingness to take risks and try new approaches. The relationship is designed to be more direct and challenging. You can count on me to be honest and straightforward, asking powerful questions and using challenging techniques to move you forward. You are expected to evaluate progress and, when coaching is not working as you wish, you should immediately inform me so we can both take steps to correct the problem.

It is very important to understand that coaching is a professional relationship. While it may often feel like a close personal relationship, it is not one that can extend beyond professional boundaries both during and after our work together. Considerable experience shows that when boundaries blur, the hard-won benefits gained from the coaching relationship are endangered.

Professional Advice

Coaching is not to be used in lieu of licensed professional advice. You agree to seek professional guidance for legal, medical, financial, business, spiritual, psychological or other matters as needed. You understand that all decisions in these areas are your sole responsibility.

If either of us recognizes that you have a problem that would benefit from a higher level of addiction treatment and/or psychotherapeutic intervention, I will refer you to appropriate resources.

Waiver

You acknowledge and agree that in the course of the coaching services, I may ask questions that are personal, challenging, or disturbing. You also acknowledge and agree that you are fully responsible for your physical, mental and emotional well-being, and for any actions, choices and decisions made as a result of the coaching. You waive and release any claims arising or results from my questions, suggestions and advice (or lack thereof) and from actions, choices and decisions you may make.

Confidentiality

As a Licensed Clinical Social Worker, I am ethically and legally bound to protect the confidentiality of our communications and records. I will release information about our work to others only with your written permission.

Exceptions

There are specific situations in which I am legally obligated to breach confidentiality in order to protect you or others from harm. If I have information that indicates that a child or elderly or disabled person is being abused, I must report that to the appropriate State agency. If a Client is an imminent risk to him/herself or makes threats of imminent violence against another, I am required to take protective actions. I must also take steps to prevent you from committing a criminal or fraudulent act. These situations are quite rare in coaching practices. If such a situation occurs in our relationship, I will make every effort to discuss it with you before taking any action. I must also respond to any court order and be able to secure legal advice about my compliance with this Agreement.

As you are no doubt aware, some means of communication, such as wireless telephones and e-mail may be not secure from eavesdropping. It is impossible to guarantee the protection of confidential information in certain circumstances involving computers. This is particularly true of email and information stored on computers that are connected to the internet. In my practice (both business and home offices), I take measures to prevent unauthorized access to information by utilizing encryption and other forms of security protection. You acknowledge that I cannot be held responsible for instances of loss of confidentiality through wireless telephone or computer hacking.

Termination of Agreement

If either party wishes to end this coaching arrangement /Agreement, he or she will notify the other party either by phone or email.

You agree to participate in a final session to discuss and assess coaching issues such as commitment and follow-through, progress toward goals and goal accomplishment, the coaching process, etc. If you wish, a six-month or one-year follow-up assessment can be discussed.

Dispute Resolution

This Agreement shall, in all respects, be governed by the laws of the State of South Carolina. Any controversy or claim arising out of, or relating to this Agreement, or the breach of this Agreement, shall be settled by binding arbitration, which will occur via telephone by an arbitrator that we mutually agree upon. The costs of the arbitration shall be the Client's sole responsibility.

Limitation of Damages

You understand that I make no guarantees or warranties, expressed or implied, about any results to be achieved. If I am found liable for any loss or damage under this Agreement (except for fraud), liability shall be limited to the lesser of the total payments made under this contract or the last six months payments.

This Agreement constitutes the entire understanding and agreement of the Client and Coach and no amendment, change or modification of this Agreement shall be valid, unless in writing and signed by the parties hereto.
